

Further consolidation of the media into fewer corporate hands deprives the public of their right to hear points of view other than those of a few corporate interests